

In what way does the PCI Security Standards Council make payment card data more secure?

PCI SSC FAQ | Article 1123 | July 2012

Security of payment card data is the responsibility of every business that participates in payment processing. Single industry-level security standards supported by the members of the PCI Security Standards Council eliminate competing and overlapping brand-specific requirements, thereby simplifying compliance for businesses that store payment card data.

Source: <https://www.pcisecuritystandards.org/faqs/1123/>